

DIXON WELCOMES ATHLETES OF DISTRICT SCHOOLS

Fifth Fugitive Convict Captured at LaSalle

BUT TWO OF SLAYERS OF DEPUTY FREE

Manhunt Kept Up While Victim is Buried This Afternoon

LaSalle, Ill., May 8.—(AP)—A man caught three miles east of here today admitted to Frank McInerney, chief of police, that he is Charles Schader, one of the seven convicts who escaped from the Stateville penitentiary last Wednesday. His capture leaves only two of the prisoners at large.

Schader, sentenced in Chicago to life imprisonment for murder, was supposed to have been with James Price, sentenced in Winnebago county for robbery. They left the other convicts shortly after the prison break, and no trace of them had been found until today.

Schader told Chief McInerney that he and Price separated the day before yesterday. When arrested, he was suffering from a bad cut on the back of his head, received in a fall from a freight train, but it was found to be not serious.

Schader offered no resistance when approached by Peter Walloch, LaSalle policeman, and James Plannery, special deputy sheriff, but had to be run down by them before he would surrender. He will be turned over immediately to prison officials from Joliet, said Mr. McInerney.

Chicago, May 8.—(AP)—Capture of a fifth escaped convict from the new Stateville Penitentiary and the funeral of Deputy Warden Peter Klein who was killed by the seven prisoners in their break for liberty last Wednesday, were the principal developments today as grand juries here and in Joliet were adjourned until next week.

Notables At Funeral
Governor Small, Warden John L. Whitman of the penitentiary, Chauncey R. Jenkins, head of the state Department of Public Welfare and other state officials, were among those expected to attend the Klein funeral held at 2 p. m., in Chicago.

The capture of Charles Schader, a Chicago murderer near LaSalle, today, left only two of the slayers of Klein at liberty. Charles Duschowsky, also a murderer from Chicago, and James Price, a Winnebago county robber, still were free with virtually no trace of them. Apparently they separated from their companions in LaSalle county where the authorities still are watching all villages, roads and railway lines.

In connection with the contradictory stories concerning Nathan Leopold, Jr., one of the two rich men's sons who killed little Bobby Franks for "a thrill" in Chicago nearly two years ago, it developed today that his father had visited the prison last Tuesday, the day before the escape, but was denied permission to see his son.

Leopold Stole Sugar
Young Leopold was in solitary confinement as a penalty for stealing sugar from the prison kitchen. Leopold has denied that he begged the convicts to take him with them although Jacob Jundt, one of the companions who beat him after they had killed Klein by stabbing him with scissor blades and beating him with an iron bar, asserted Leopold had tried to persuade them to free him.

State's Attorney Rehn, at Joliet, announced today that he probably would summon Chauncey Jenkins, whose welfare department has jurisdiction over prison affairs and Will Colvin, head of the board of pardons and paroles, and other prison officials, before the grand jury on Wednesday. He had intended calling them on Monday.

The grand jury inquiry, which will be resumed on Monday, has been broadened not only to include the prison break but also conditions within as well as the obtaining of pardons for convicts. The pardon matter as well as the general gangster crime situation in Chicago is under the scrutiny of Attorney General Carlstrom and State's Attorney Crowe, who are directing the special grand jury here.

C. A. Bigford, a captain of the guards at the old prison, and two other guards, left today for LaSalle to identify and return Schader to prison.

Seek Three Near Chicago
Three men suspected of being co-conspirators in the escape were sought.

Glee Clubs of D. H. S. Scored High in Contest

The boys and girls glee clubs of the Dixon high schools, each sixteen strong and under the direction of Mrs. Bennett Rorick, acquitted themselves with exceptional credit Friday evening in the district high school oratorical, literary and musical contest at LaSalle, when the boys' organization was adjudged the best in the meeting and the girls' club took second place in their department.

Each organization sang with real finish and ability, reflecting the very faithful and hard work they had done in preparation for the contest and the pains which their director had taken with them. Eight schools were represented in the event, which is pronounced to have been of real merit.

TRUCK DRIVERS OF CHICAGO PAY FINE UNDER NEW ACTION

Transported Meat Scraps Through Streets in Violation of Law

An emergency ordinance designated for the protection of the public health passed by the city council in February, was enforced for the first time this week when Howard Johansen and Ray McDowell, truck drivers for the Darling Company of Chicago, were arrested for transferring loads of hides, tallow and meat scraps in the downtown district. Both were taken before Justice Grover W. Gehant in police court, and assessed the minimum fines of $15 and costs.

Attorney Lockwood of Chicago, representing the firm, came to Dixon yesterday to investigate the ordinance. It requires that bones, meat scraps and other animal matter being transported through the city be carried in air tight containers. The ordinance was passed following the receipt of many complaints. The attorney investigated the ordinance and paid the fines of the two employees. He was anxious to cooperate with the city officials in the handling of the animal matter and in its transportation through the city.

Raymond Zintz, arrested last evening, was fined $3 and costs in police court by Justice Grover Gehant for driving his automobile on the sidewalk.

Sam Reland was fined $15 and costs for being intoxicated, the additional five dollar being assessed on account of this being his second offense in a few days. Herman Wolf paid a fine of $10 and costs for being intoxicated, and Ed. M. Johnson was fined $100 and costs on a charge of possessing intoxicating liquor. Justice J. O. Shaulis presided in the last three cases.

Methodist Bishops Send "Uncle Joe" Best Wishes

Washington, May 8.—(AP)—The board of bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church has sent a greeting to "Uncle Joe" Cannon congratulating him on his birthday and recent affiliation with the Methodist church.

"The bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church in regular session," the telegram signed by Bishop Hughes of Chicago said, "send you affectionate greetings on your 50th anniversary. They have the memories of your dead wife's long and faithful service in our church and rejoice greatly in your own fellowship with us. They pray for God's blessing on you always."

"MOTHER" WILL BE THEME SERVICES DIXON CHURCHES

Tomorrow to be Devoted to Memory and Love of All Mothers

Dixon people will unite tomorrow in paying tributes to their mothers—the observance of the day as Mother's Day being nationwide—and in every church in the city special features will be arranged honoring the mothers, living and dead.

Everyone is expected to wear a flower—a white one for the mother who has departed this life, and a bright blossom for the mother living; children are urged to visit their mothers where it is possible, and if such visits cannot be made letters and messages of love should be sent to them.

As its bit to the observance of the day the Y. M. C. A. has arranged to furnish transport for every mother who wishes to attend some church service tomorrow and who has no means of reaching her chosen church. A phone call to the Y. M. C. A., 1039, this evening or Friday early Sunday morning, will result in some Y. M. C. A. member calling for and taking any mother to church and returning her home after the services.

ORIGIN OF THE DAY

Back in the dark days of the Civil War a little white-haired woman, a mother herself, carried her one message to the boys in blue and the boys in gray—

"Write home to mother."

The war over, the little woman, Mrs. Anna M. Jarvis, carried on her work of "Write home to mother." Upon her death her daughter, also Anna Jarvis, took up her mother's work, founding Mothers' Day and the Mothers' Day International Association.

That was over 10 years ago. The date is determined each year.

This day is as much of an American legal holiday as Fourth of July or Christmas. Almost 10 years ago Congress passed a resolution that the flag be displayed on this day in honor to Mother.

The slogan of Mothers' Day is—"In honor of the best mother who ever lived—the Mother of Your Heart."

TO BROADCAST SERVICE

Washington, May 8.—(AP)—Mothers Day services at which Vice President Dawes will preside, will be held Sunday at 2:30 o'clock eastern standard time, at Arlington National Cemetery.

With Secretary of Labor Davis as the principal speaker, these stations will broadcast the service: WCAP, Washington; WEA, New York; WEIC, Boston; WSAI, Cincinnati; WCCO, Minneapolis-St. Paul.

The Health Day parade sponsored by the County School Nurse, Mrs. Jessie Rurefield, the City School Nurse, Miss Bertha Hanes, and associated organizations, led by the Boys' band of the Y. M. C. A. took place this afternoon shortly after 8 o'clock. To the inspiring strains of the Boys' Band the parade including the Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts, and school children and a number of the teachers started from the "Y" and paraded the business district, forcibly arousing interest in National Health Week aims, with Old Glory at the front of the line in several places, with the snappy music and happy, wholesome faces much interest was aroused in the movement. The children of today are interested in health. They want to keep well and are willing to learn.

Fourteen indictments, most of them charging prohibition law violations have been returned by the crime grand jury. Its inquiry was started soon after the fatal machine gun attack on Assistant State's Attorney William McGwigin and two companions.

DIXON-BELVIDERE ELECTRIC POWER LINE IS OPPOSED

Winnebago Co. Farmers Held Meeting Friday to Protest

Rockford, Ill., May 8.—Farmers living southwest of Rockford held a meeting at the Harrison place last Friday evening to protest against the setting of steel poles and the stringing of high tension wires across farms in that neighborhood by the Illinois Northern Utilities Company.

The proposed high tension line will extend from Dixon to Belvidere across a small section of Winnebago county. The route of the proposed line will be through farms in the vicinity of Harrisville, it is understood.

Chicago Hearing

Next week in Chicago there will be a hearing before the Illinois commerce commission upon the petition of the Illinois Northern Utilities Co. for permission to set up poles and extend transmission lines from Dixon to Belvidere to furnish electric power to Belvidere and towns en route.

It is alleged by farmers that the cutting across field with a high tension power line greatly damages the price of farm land. At each pole set there are strong guy wires which occupy much space that cannot be cultivated.

Can Force Right-of-Way

Electric companies, as corporations, however, by law can force a right-of-way for their lines, it is said, upon the ground, in common law, of eminent domain. They could force a right-of-way just as a railroad or an interurban line can eminent domain recognize the general public good is superior to the good to be received by any one or any small group of citizens. It recognizes that the damages of an individual must be submerged for the benefit of the common good.

MODERN TOURISTS' CAMPING GROUNDS AT ASSEMBLY PARK ARRANGED FOR BY LEASE

One Big Score For Kishwaukee Not on the Book

Here's a score made by one of the high school athletes of Kishwaukee Consolidated High School of Winnebago county, which will not be counted in the tabulations of the district track meet held today in this city, but which is worthy of mention.

A carrier pigeon, the band on the leg of which was inscribed "1243 EMPC 24," was saved from drowning in Rock river shortly before noon by Harley Rothwell of that school, who with his professor, R. A. Schick, and Orlo Miller and Clarence Lenstrom, fellow students, took advantage of the noon recess to visit the L. N. U. hydro plant at the foot of Ottawa avenue.

While looking over the massive concrete work at the plant, Harley saw the pigeon, exhausted, floundering in the water below him, almost gone. He saved the bird, fed it and released it.

And whether Kishwaukee scores a point in the meet or not Harley has shown the calibre of his school.

STRIKE SITUATION UNCHANGED TODAY, BRITAIN REPORTS

No Peace Negotiations Under Way; Hunger Among Strikers

BULLETIN

London, May 8.—(AP)—7:30 P. M.—Labor headquarters announced tonight at "the second line of defense" men were steadily ceasing work. These include the gas and electric workers.

London, May 8.—(AP)—The government announced early this afternoon that the strike situation was the same as yesterday with transportation improving and no negotiations for peace. A survey of the whole country showed that food stocks were normal and the mails were moving satisfactorily.

Intensive preparation by the government to deal with any untoward situation and to keep the vital services running marked the fifth day of the general strike.

This being a half holiday there was little attempt to conduct ordinary business anywhere.

Labor headquarters did not issue its usual noon statement, but conferences were going on continually among the leaders. Thus far there are no signs of reopening official peace negotiations and the miners' leader, A. J. Cook, told The Associated Press there was nothing to indicate the possibility of any such parleys over the week-end.

In the Welsh mining district, miners are beginning to feel the pinch of hunger, and hundreds of miners' families have appealed to the Poor Guardians for relief.

The police in the congested districts of London were reinforced today as a precaution against possible looting of shops tonight when the workers receive strike pay instead of their usual weekly envelopes.

Armored cars are being moved toward London from the Aldershot Military Camp and a tank corps was embarked at Belfast this morning for an unknown destination. No disorders of consequence had been reported up to early afternoon, London time.

The trans-Atlantic liners continue to move passengers to and from ports by means of motor lorries.

The strikers' pickets make no trouble at the docks and most sailings are proceeding according to schedule.

Horton Godfrey Given Promotion by Company

Horton C. Godfrey, formerly of this city, has received a very fine promotion from the Bunte Brothers confectionery company in Chicago. Mr. Godfrey has been in the sales service of the company for several years and in his new position, he has been made general sales and export manager, in charge of both the domestic and export trade. Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey will motor to Dixon tomorrow to remain over Sunday visiting with his mother.

E. H. May to Operate Finest Camp Site in the Mid-West

A transaction which means much to the business interests of Dixon was consummated Friday in the leasing to Elwood H. May of a part of the Rock River Assembly Park for a term of ten years. Under the terms of the lease Mr. May acquired the hotel, bathing beach and the park grounds west of the auditorium.

It is his plan to operate a tourists' camp in the west part of the park near the Secretary's office, while north of the hotel he will install fifty fully equipped tents for tourists traveling with only bedding. The hotel will furnish accommodations for those who do not care for camp life or who travel light.

The park furnishes an ideal place for a tourists' camp grounds, along the beautiful Rock river, with bathing beach, boating, tub and shower baths, camp stoves, camp stove, electric lights, police protection—and in fact everything desirable. There will be few tourists' camps like this in the whole country.

To Close Other Ground

Mr. May operated the tourists' camp grounds a block north of the Borden factory last year and still has that site under lease for a term of years, but at present he does not contemplate operating it this year, as the Assembly Park will accommodate all and is a much more desirable location. It is expected that the hotel at the Assembly Park will be open for the coming state convention of the United Commercial Travelers, which will be held in Dixon May 20, 21 and 22. The tourists' camp is now open, accommodating its first patron Friday night.

It is announced that the leasing of the park will not in any way interfere with the regular chautauqua entertainment which will be held as in the past, nor with the use of the park for picnic purposes, etc., to which he has been put by Dixon people.

Congress' Program for Session Now Outlined

Washington, May 8.—(AP)—The House program for the remainder of the session was outlined today by Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the republican leader, as including farm, rivers and harbors, coal, veterans, judiciary and civil service legislation.

GOOD MARKS BEING MADE BY ATHLETES

Light Rain This Morning Helped Track; Visitors Pleased

The light rain which set in shortly before 8 o'clock this morning served to aid instead of hampering the district high school track and field meet which is being staged at the north side athletic field today. Every one of the thirty-three northern Illinois schools entered was on the field at the official starting time at 8:45 and the preliminary and semi-finals were sent off on schedule time. The rain was sufficient to settle the dust on the track and did not make the field slippery for the events during the morning.

Good time was registered in every one of the track events and some good distances, so considered by officials, were established in the early preliminaries on the field. Rock Island was being touted as the probable victor in the meet, but in the preliminaries had made no exceptional showing. Aside from a few students who accompanied the athletes on the trip, the crowd this morning was limited, but shortly before noon, many were arriving from throughout the northern part of the state and there were indications of about a thousand visitors in the city when the finals started this afternoon.

Preliminaries This Morning

Freeport high school made a very good showing in the preliminaries this morning, Rube outshining a big 194-lb. contender in the 220 lb. contest. It is expected that the preliminaries will be exceptional for high school meets. In the shot put, Behr of Freeport stepped out in front and tossed the iron ball a distance of 40 feet 10 and one-half inches for first place. Little of Rock Falls surpassed the entrants in the javelin throw, sending the rod a distance of 147 feet six inches for the leadership. There were many close competitors in each of the events.

The track was fast and Rockford, Moline and Rock Island athletes were taking the lead in the preliminaries. Every event was being run off on schedule time without a lull in the entire bill. There were about 300 contestants on the field when the announcers called the opening events before 9 o'clock this morning. It was the largest track and field meet ever held in Dixon and visiting coaches and officials were loud in their praises of the field and equipment which was found upon their arrival.

TWO DEAD, MANY HURT IN STORM

Tornado Swept Eastern Oklahoma Yesterday P. M.

Oklahoma City, Okla., May 8.—(AP)—Two persons are known to have been killed and more than two score injured, three probably fatally, in a tornado which swept eastern Oklahoma yesterday. Crippled service today delayed wire reports from the stricken area.

The tornado visited widely separated districts. Although high winds caused property damage in various communities, three sections bore the brunt of the storm. Several persons were injured and houses demolished at Morse, in Oklahoma county. Dayton, near the Oklahoma-Muskogee county line and the Nubbins Ridge District in Redford county, were hard hit. Examinations today revealed several of the injured suffered fractured skulls.

New York, May 8.—(AP)—A meeting of representatives of bond houses held here late yesterday in the offices of Healy, Huntington & Co., to consider a proposal to bridge the Mississippi river at Cairo, Illinois, adjourned last night until next week without announcing any decision. Should an agreement be reached according to present specifications it is expected a bond issue to cover most of the cost will be underwritten by the brokers.

British Strikers Turn

Down Funds from Russia

London, May 8.—(AP)—The executive council of the trades union congress has declined to receive financial assistance from the Russian Red International Federation for aid in conducting the general strike in Great Britain.

The trades union congress has returned a check received from the Russian body with a courteous expressed intimation of appreciation, but voicing its inability to accept the money.

A Moscow dispatch last night said that the Soviet labor federation had transferred 2,000,000 rubles (about $1, 000,000) to the British trades union congress as the second installment of a 3,500,000 ruble fund being raised by Russian laborers and office workers to aid in conducting the British strike.

Tomorrow is Mother's Day—so if you are away from home just sit down and write that letter to Mother you have been going to write for some time, but which you have been postponing from day to day. Flowers and gifts are not amiss on this day of days, but write her anyway, and let her know you are thinking of her—who all life through has been thinking of you, sacrificing for you. Wherever she is, she is your best friend.

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY.

Breakfast.
Orange juice, cereal, thin cream, shirred eggs, crisp toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon.
Spring soup, croutons, chocolate bread pudding with whipped cream, milk, tea.

Dinner.
Casserole of smoked halibut, buttered string beans, jellied tomato salad, rye bread, cottage pudding with maple sauce, milk, coffee.

This "spring soup" is recommended as a dish to serve once a week during spring fever days. It seems to take the place of the herb teas our great-grandmothers used to brew for their families. Acting as a tonic and blood purifier it's said to be a sure cure for spring fever.

The soup also uses up the veal bone and scraps remaining from the roast.

Spring Soup.

One cup minced dandelion leaves, 1 cup minced chervil, 1 cup minced purslane, 1/2 cup shredded cabbage, 1/4 cup minced sorrel, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 3 tablespoons flour, 3 cups veal stock, 1 cup cream, 1 egg.

Wash greens carefully through many waters before mincing. Put into the kettle with the cabbage, distributing the butter through the greens. Season with sugar, salt and pepper and steam until tender. Sift flour over mixture and stir until thoroughly blended. Add stock and simmer 15 minutes, stirring to prevent lumping. Rub through a colander. Return to the fire and add cream and egg beaten together. Heat, stirring constantly, but do not let boil. Serve at once. (Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

Dixon Young People Were Wed Today

A marriage of much interest today was that of Dixon young people, the marriage ceremony being solemnized in Evanston. Orville W. Smith and Miss Grace Byers were married in the presence of about twelve relatives and a few intimate friends by Rev. A. S. Moore, pastor of the Covenant Methodist church of Evanston, formerly pastor of the Methodist church in this city. The wedding ceremony took place about 10 o'clock, the guests including Mrs. John H. Byers, mother of the bride, and her sisters and brothers. The bride and bridegroom were attended by the sister of the bride, Miss Alice Byers, as bridesmaid, and by Chester Olson, of Chicago, a Northwestern University student.

The bride was charming in a wedding gown of georgette crepe in toast color, made over a satin slip, with hat in the same delicate shade. Her coat was of black satin with blond fur trimming. She wore a bridal corsage of rosebuds and lilies. Miss Alice Byers wore a lovely gown of peach colored crepe de chine and a peach colored hat. She wore a corsage of roses and sweet peas.

After the congratulations the bridal party and guests were entertained at a wedding luncheon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Byers, who have been married recently on North Argyle street. Mr. Byers is a brother of the bride. The decorations for the wedding luncheon were springlike and beautiful, flowers in pink and delicate yellow, with ferns, being employed.

After a short honeymoon the newly married pair will come to Dixon to make their home in an apartment at Seventh street and Highland avenue. Both are highly esteemed young folks with hosts of friends who extend best wishes for their happiness. Mrs. Smith is the daughter of former Rep. John H. Byers and wife, and is a vivacious and charming young woman. Mr. Smith, who is employed in the statistician's department at the I. N. U. Co.'s offices in Dixon, has a most pleasing personality and fine character.

Homely Wives

Men married to homely wives are much happier than men married to beautiful girls, thinks a movie actor who might get unduly puffed up if I mentioned him by name. He explains: "A beautiful woman thinks that she can rest upon her laurels, but a homely one must be cheerful and have a ready wit to get by at all. The beautiful woman thinks that she does not need to learn to cook and sew and run a house."

Dorcas Society Held Meeting

The members of the Dorcas Society of the West Side Congregational church held a meeting Thursday afternoon at the church, with a good attendance of members.

Mrs. J. B. Stackpole had charge of the devotions. The business session followed. In answering roll call the members responded by telling of the ways in which they had earned their dollar for the new carpet, and presenting the dollar. Some of the members had written original humorous verses on the subject and the unusual roll call was much enjoyed.

After the meeting proper, Mrs. Margaret Burrs and Mrs. Ella March were hostesses at a very tempting birthday luncheon which was greatly enjoyed by all present.

Two Good Games in Opening Boys' Ball League Friday P. M.

The Boys' base ball league started yesterday with two enthusiastic games, one played at Assembly Park and the other on the Kiwanis Athletic field near the E. C. Smith school. The game at Assembly Park between the North Central School and the South Central School boys was a real fight from start to finish but in the last inning the South Centrals managed to bring in two extra runs, making a score in their favor of 11 to 9.

On the South Side, Don Worley, who pitched for the E. C. Smith against the St. Mary's team, did not pitch a shut-out game but it amounted to almost that for he allowed only four men to reach a base. These four, however, made a score of four for their team. While they were doing this, however, the E. C. Smith piled up 15. The reason for St. Mary's downfall was lack of practice, for several individual plays were exceptionally good. They claim, however, that they will make up for it between now and next week.

The standing of the league is as follows:

Team	W	L	Points
South Central	1	0	1
E. C. Smith	1	0	1
St. Mary's	0	1	0
North Central	0	1	0

Next Friday, May 14th South Central will meet St. Mary's at the Kiwanis field and North Central will meet E. C. Smith at the Assembly Park field.

Y. M. C. A. to Help Take "Mothers" to Churches

Tomorrow is Mothers' Day and the Y. M. C. A. being primarily a men's organization, is intensely interested in the observance of this day. Every man and boy in the city is urged to not only wear the carnation in memory of his mother but also to write a Mothers' Day letter to his mother if she be living and not within visiting distance. Of all the days that we observe in the United States, we know of no day that is so worthy of observance.

If there is any mother in the city who wishes to attend church services tomorrow and who needs transportation, if she will phone the "Y" this evening or visit tomorrow will be supplied with transportation to and from any church.

Monday Ladies' Day at Local Association Bldg.

Lest the ladies of the city forget, we are reminding them that Monday is ladies' day at the "Y". Hot days are ahead of us and vacation will soon be here. It is a time when every woman wishes she had learned to swim during the past winter. It is not too late to start now and individual lessons will be given to any person.

THE WOMAN'S DAY

By Allene Sumner

Tidbits

Time was when our story tellers, singers and poets sang of this thing love that "to the woman all of life is to the man but passing incident." Now comes Judge Walter S. Gates, declaring that men take the marriage vow seriously, women but lightly. "Girls marry for an adventure, for meal tickets. Men marry for home and take obligations to home seriously." I don't believe one word of it. It's six of one, half dozen 't' other.

Poetess Speaks

Being on the subject of love and matrimony, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, wife of the poet Robert Browning and one of the world's few women who possessed both the joy of self-expression through her work and a marvelously happy married life, wrote "A Woman's Question":

"You require a cook for your mutton and beef;

I require a far better thing;

A seamstress you're wanting for stockings and shirts—

I look for a zian and a king;

If you cannot do this, a laundress and cook

You hire with little pay;

But a woman's heart and a woman's life

Are not to be won that way."

Pauline Says

Did you ever hear tell of "A Rest Day for Faces?" Neither did I, albeit I know all about fish week, hash week, prune day, rutabaga week, and tutti-frutti Sundays. Pauline Starke says:—

"One day a week the face should be free, unhampered by any make-up. I set aside one day a week in which to rest the face. Arising, I wash my face in warm water and a pure soap, music was furnished for the dancing. The May party of 1926 was a enjoyable success.

Wear on "Face Rest Day"

Most maids and matrons must wear special toggery on "Face Rest Day," or the populace will be unable to stand the shock of the assault to their aesthetic senses. If she would look extra smart she might wear an ensemble costume of short skirt and three-quarter coat of different but harmonizing colors and material. Thus black crepe skirt and beige kasha coat or beige skirt and navy coat.

Homely Wives

Men married to homely wives are much happier than men married to beautiful girls, thinks a movie actor who might get unduly puffed up if I mentioned him by name. He explains: "A beautiful woman thinks that she can rest upon her laurels, but a homely one must be cheerful and have a ready wit to get by at all. The beautiful woman thinks that she does not need to learn to cook and sew and run a house."

Dorcas Society Held Meeting

The members of the Dorcas Society of the West Side Congregational church held a meeting Thursday afternoon at the church, with a good attendance of members.

Mrs. J. B. Stackpole had charge of the devotions. The business session followed. In answering roll call the members responded by telling of the ways in which they had earned their dollar for the new carpet, and presenting the dollar. Some of the members had written original humorous verses on the subject and the unusual roll call was much enjoyed.

After the meeting proper, Mrs. Margaret Burrs and Mrs. Ella March were hostesses at a very tempting birthday luncheon which was greatly enjoyed by all present.

Two Good Games in Opening Boys' Ball League Friday P. M.

The Boys' base ball league started yesterday with two enthusiastic games, one played at Assembly Park and the other on the Kiwanis Athletic field near the E. C. Smith school. The game at Assembly Park between the North Central School and the South Central School boys was a real fight from start to finish but in the last inning the South Centrals managed to bring in two extra runs, making a score in their favor of 11 to 9.

On the South Side, Don Worley, who pitched for the E. C. Smith against the St. Mary's team, did not pitch a shut-out game but it amounted to almost that for he allowed only four men to reach a base. These four, however, made a score of four for their team. While they were doing this, however, the E. C. Smith piled up 15. The reason for St. Mary's downfall was lack of practice, for several individual plays were exceptionally good. They claim, however, that they will make up for it between now and next week.

The standing of the league is as follows:

Team	W	L	Points
South Central	1	0	1
E. C. Smith	1	0	1

Next Friday, May 14th South Central will meet St. Mary's at the Kiwanis field and North Central will meet E. C. Smith at the Assembly Park field.

Y. M. C. A. to Help Take "Mothers" to Churches

Tomorrow is Mothers' Day and the Y. M. C. A. being primarily a men's organization, is intensely interested in the observance of this day. Every man and boy in the city is urged to not only wear the carnation in memory of his mother but also to write a Mothers' Day letter to his mother if she be living and not within visiting distance. Of all the days that we observe in the United States, we know of no day that is so worthy of observance.

If there is any mother in the city who wishes to attend church services tomorrow and who needs transportation, if she will phone the "Y" this evening or visit tomorrow will be supplied with transportation to and from any church.

Monday Ladies' Day at Local Association Bldg.

Lest the ladies of the city forget, we are reminding them that Monday is ladies' day at the "Y". Hot days are ahead of us and vacation will soon be here. It is a time when every woman wishes she had learned to swim during the past winter. It is not too late to start now and individual lessons will be given to any person.

FOR MOTHERS ONLY!

A poet once sang his lay about God being in the heaven, making all well with the world.

But heaven is so far, and mother's kitchen is so near. God is so remote, so strange, so awesome, so many-named to even grown-ups.

Is it any wonder then that the child is not so concerned about God being in his heaven making all well with the world, as that mother is in her kitchen going about the home-ly ritual of every-day living, which means that the child's world is well indeed?

We grown-ups, casting back through the years, find one unfading memory—this memory of a radiant, joyous, all-well world when mother was at her post, of a world out of joint and fallen upon evil ways with mother away or ill or gone from us.

Mothers give their lives.

They get a day.

One day from the cycle of the year's many days in which to be formally told that they are beloved.

We wonder sometimes if these mothers who love silently every second of their lives, asking little word-spoken love in return, know of this childish faith in a mother-ruled world, this childish horror of a world without mother at the helm?

Perhaps they do. Perhaps that is why children rushing home from school find a kitchen fragrant with sugary cookies baked for them, find a sewing machine whirring away at foamy ruffles and lace, find pink frosting being smeared upon a birthday cake and feel a mother's kiss upon them, and a smile in her eyes if the report of the school day is good.

The mother's lot is a hard lot. A round of working, battling, praying, weeping, smiling for her children.

Is it worth the candle, we sometimes wonder? The answer is locked fast in the hearts of all mothers.

But the very fact that mothers are, must prove that they chose this way of life, clear-eyed, believing that the goal is worth the game.

And there is only one possible goal which can make their years a crown and not a cross to them—the goal of rich, abundant, grateful love lavished upon them from the hearts that once beat next their own.

Tomorrow is Mothers' Day. Armfuls of blossoms will fill the arms of American motherhood Sunday.

That love which gets beaten behind the dam by the feverish pulse of rushing every-day life, gushes forth for its little hour tomorrow, telling mothers that they are loved always even as today.

THE GOLDEN STATE.

Distribution of a train load of dependent persons brought to the midwest from the Stockton, Cal., hospital for insane is reported in western Iowa. The circumstance that revealed the movement was the return of a young woman, Miss Edna Congleton, to Logan, Iowa.

It is related at Logan that a Mrs. Myers, an attendant in the Stockton institution, without any previous notice, drove up to the county jail at Logan and produced papers committing Miss Congleton to the care of the sheriff. Sheriff Milliman said he was informed by the attendant that Miss Congleton was one of 150 persons brought from Stockton on a special train to Kansas City, there to be distributed to various destinations. His investigation disclosed that Miss Congleton taught school in that county in 1924 and in that year to California, where she was committed to the hospital. From the attendant it was learned that Miss Congleton had relatives in Kansas, the location of whom she declined to disclose. She said there had been some question raised in California as to whether the patient should be returned to Kansas or Iowa, and they decided as an experiment to send her to the last place of residence.

Sheriff Milliman refused to accept the patient, and she was placed in a private hospital for insane in Council Bluffs pending a court decision as to responsibility for her care.

The senatorial rule not to confirm in office a man personally obnoxious to one of the senators prevailed in the case of Judge Wallace McCamant of Oregon, who refused to vote for Senator Johnson for president in 1920 and nominated Calvin Coolidge for vice president. In the language of Mark Twain, Senator Johnson of California is a "permanent and reliable enemy." McCamant had been nominated by the president for the office of judge of the United States circuit court.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWIN

by Olive Roberts Barton

THE RAIN BARREL FAIRIES

"Did you see a little lost shadow around any place?" asked Nancy.

"The Twins and the Whiffet trudged along and along and along, and pretty soon they came to the watering trough under which the toad lived.

There she sat under a toadstool umbrella, to keep the drops off that splashed over.

"Did you see a little lost shadow around any place?" asked Nancy. "This poor little Whiffet lost his shadow when he was crossing the stile."

"No," said the toad. "That's a silly thing to do. But since it's done, there is only one thing left. That is for him to keep out of the sun for the rest of his days. Then he won't miss it."

"Well I didn't come for advice," said the Whiffet. "I came for my shadow, thank you. I for one don't care to sit under a watering trough and do nothing but get fat. Good-bye."

"Good-bye!" said the toad. "The life suits me. You might ask the rain-barrel fairies."

The rain-barrel fairies were floating around on the top of the rain-barrel in little leaf boats. They had nets and were fishing for skippers.

The Twins and the Whiffet climbed up on the edge and watched them.

"Did you see a stray shadow around anywhere?" asked the Whiffet.

"My goodness!" cried one of the rain-barrel fairies. "Your suit's all shrunken up. Did you fall in?"

"Did?"

"You?"

"Fell?"

"In?" sang out the other tiny creatures.

"I asked you a civil question and I expect a civil answer, not a question like a stepladder," said the Whiffet. "Yes, I fell into the drain and my suit all shrank up. But that's up, too. They probably will be worried."

Remembering that the name of Hathaway that had such an electrical effect upon every one to whom I had mentioned it, I answered quickly, "Miss Riley at whose mother's house I have been rooming and myself were going out to dinner with Jerry Hathaway, Jr., and his friend, James Costello."

The desk sergeant smiling, "He is the son of an immensely rich Hathaway who owns a chain of restaurants all over the country. You had better notify him immediately." He thrust the receiver of the telephone into my hands.

"I think if you don't mind," I said, "I will telephone Mamie first. Perhaps Mr. Hathaway will still be there."

I called the number.

SETBACKS

Say, what's the diff if your plans go smash, an' a thought turns out as a heap of trash? It can fret you a lot, but it won't a bit, if the stuff you've got make you never quit.

You can't quite expect every thought that's bent, to bring forth results of a hundred per cent. Some things, undertaken, fall shy now and then, but, remember, old top, you can try again.

The fellow who figures and plans all day, and sticks to his task in his own sweet way, can feel fairly sure that he'll reach the top, when setbacks and such never make him stop.

The easiest way is to give right in—that is, if you never expect to win. But the better way, when the going's rough, is to plug on through—an' show your stuff.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"MORTALS AND IMMORTALS" was the subject of the lesson sermon in all churches of Christ, Scientist, May 16.

The Golden Text was from Jeremiah 24: "I will give them an heart to know me, that I am the Lord; and they shall be my people, and I will be their God; for they shall return unto me with their whole heart."

Among the citations which comprised the sermon was the following pertinent selection from the Bible: "There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit. Therefore, brethren, we are debtors, not to the flesh, to live after the flesh. For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God" (Romans 8: 1, 12, 14).

Also a corresponding passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "We must form perfect models in thought and look at them continually, or we shall never carve them out in grand and noble lives. Let unselfishness, goodness, mercy, justice, health, holiness, love—the kingdom of heaven—reign within us, and sin, disease, and death will diminish until they finally disappear" (p. 248).

IVANHOE—

THE FIVE KNIGHTS ADVANCED TO THE TENTS OF THE CHALLENGERS, WHERE EACH TOUCHED THE SHIELD OF HIS ANTAGONIST WITH THE REVERSE OF HIS LANCE, INDICATING THEY PREFERRED TO JOUST WITH BLUNTED WEAPONS. AT A FLOURISH OF TRUMPETS AND CLARIONS THEY STARTED AGAINST EACH OTHER AT FULL GALLOP.

THOSE OPPOSED TO BOIS-GUILBERT, THE LEADER OF THE CHALLENGERS, AND TO MALVOISIN AND FRONT DE BOEUF, ROLLED ON THE GROUND. THE FIFTH KNIGHT ALONE MAINTAINING THE HONOR OF HIS PARTY. A SECOND, A THIRD AND A FOURTH PARTY OF KNIGHTS TOOK THE FIELD AGAINST THE CHALLENGERS, BUT WITHOUT SUCCESS.

Sir Walter Scott's Classic in Pictorial Form

—By Redner

THE STORY THUS FAR—The story is laid in the England of Richard I. Gurth, a swineherd, and Wamba, a jester, are accosted by a party of knights seeking the castle of Cedric, the Saxon. The knights are coldly received, and their leader, Brian the Templar, incurs Cedric's ire by his admiration of Cedric's daughter, Rowena. A Jewish stranger enters the hall, and the knights discuss the war in the Holy Land. They comment on the brave deeds of the crusaders, and Brian announces that a knight named Ivanhoe "occasionally is falling." He added that he would seek to joust Ivanhoe on the latter's return. When a man disguised in the outfit of palmer or wandering friar, the Jew flees the castle as Brian plans to seize him. As they part the Jew tells the palmer where he can find an armor for the big tournament. As the tournament opens Prince John, brother of King Richard, is attracted by the beauty of Rebecca, the Jew's daughter. Wishing to borrow money from the Jew later, John orders that room be made for the money lender and Rebecca in the section reserved for Cedric. A fight is prevented by Wamba, Cedric's jester, as the tournament begins.

FINALLY, WHEN IT SEEMED THAT BOIS-GUILBERT AND HIS CHALLENGERS WERE TO EMERGE WITH ALL THE HONORS, A SOLITARY TRUMPET BREATHED ITS DEFERENCE FROM THE NORTH END OF THE LISTS. ALL EYES TURNED TO THIS NEW CHAMPION, WHO WAS SLENDERLY BUILT AND BORE ON HIS SHIELD THE DEVICE OF AN OAK TREE TORN UP BY THE ROOTS.

REGARDING THE CRIES OF THE MULTITUDE TO TOUCH RALPH DE VIVONT'S SHIELD, DE VIVONT BEING THE LEAST STRONG OF THE CHALLENGERS, THIS YOUTH, WHOSE BEARING SEEMED TO WIN THE CROWD'S SYMPATHY AND RESPECT, RODE UP TO THE CENTRAL PAVILION AND STRUCK WITH THE SHARP END OF HIS SPEAR THE SHIELD OF BOIS-GUILBERT. (To Be Continued)

George Emmert of Chicago visited Sunday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Emmert.

Next Tuesday afternoon and night will be circus day for Franklin Grove. The Sells-Sterling circus will be here all day long and give two performances afternoon and night. It has been a long time since we had a real circus in town and the bill board brought out a large crowd of boys and girls and older folks as well. One of the best features of this show is that it will be on the camp grounds, right near the town. Generally all show tents are pitched a long way from the town but not so with this one. Next Tuesday afternoon, boys and girls, the band will play, the elephants will dance, the lions will roar, the dogs will perform, and the steam calliope will play. A free attraction at the grounds at one o'clock will be a drawing card and we predict that just a lot of boys and girls will be late for school, but one can hardly blame them "When The Circus Comes to Town."

The April Honor Roll of the grades of the local school as follows:— Room 1—Jack Kelley, Gwendolyn Sistr, Lucille Yocum, Lois Hanawalt, Joyce Olson, Georgia Peterman. Room 2—Casper Hanawalt, June Conlon, Catherine Hanawalt, Harold Buck, Scott Stultz.

Room 3—Sheila Nicely, Harold Buck, Clark Nunt, Pauline Hawbeck.

The Woman's Club met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Earl Buck. There was a very good attendance.

The committee reported having purchased a Scotch pine tree for the park. It is the hope of the ladies that this tree may be used, when large enough for a community Christmas tree. Plans were discussed for the postponed carnival to be put on in June. The election of officers resulted in the following being chosen, President—Miss Clara Lohman, Vice President—Mrs. LaForrest Meredith, Second Vice President—Miss Alice Thornton, Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. Hannah Conlon, Directors—Mrs. Minnie Brown, Mrs. Henry Withey, and Mrs. Elizabeth Durkes. The directors who held over from last year are Mrs. Earl Buck and Mrs. Frank Senger.

The June meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Lorenzo Brewer. The club would be glad to welcome any ladies who may wish to become members at this time. It is only through the cooperation of all the ladies of the community that the plans of the club may be carried out. Miss Clara Lohman and Mrs. Reigle were appointed delegates to the District Convention to be held at Polo, with Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Conlon as alternates. At the close of the business a social hour was enjoyed during which Mrs. Buck served refreshments.

A very pleasant afternoon was enjoyed Saturday when Mesdames John Cover and Charles Kelley entertained nine tables of bridge at the home of the former. The ladies from out of town attending included Mrs. W. W. Wooley, of Dixon; Mrs. A. Aschenbrenner of Lee Center and Mrs. Geo. Stephan of Ashton. Daffodils and hyacinths predominated the decorative scheme of the bright May day. A two course delicious luncheon was served. At the game of bridge Mrs. Wooley won first prize and Mrs. Aschenbrenner won second. The party was one of the happiest occasions the ladies have ever experienced.

Mesdames James Conlon, Elmer Miller and Harold Kelley and daughters were Dixon visitors yesterday.

The high school baseball team again defeated the Ashton team, at Ashton Thursday afternoon the score being 4 to 2.

Frank Bates received word Tuesday that his sister Mrs. Angie Wobnie was seriously ill at the home of her son in Chicago.

Fred C. Gross is serving on the grand jury in Dixon this week.

The Long Road

FAMILY LIFE moves its leisurely way on the long journey . . . down the long road . . . as happy a journey as pleasant association can make it.

It is marked . . . usually . . . by one treasured possession in common, the home.

The long road in comfort has its compensations. A home growing old gracefully . . . continuing to give summer and winter comfort through every season . . . somehow preserves those home associations . . . the memories . . . for all time.

A man can build his home just as substantially, just as sturdily, as he builds his home life.

Not to slight either the workmanship or the materials is to give the home permanence.

Such foresight often results in the choice, by name, of Long-Bell trade-marked lumber. We would like to show you this lumber and tell you about our complete Home Building Service.

CHICAGO CUBS IN LEAD IN BATTING IN NAT'L LEAGUE

Hack Wilson and Cliffe Heathcote Set Lead for Chicagoans

Chicago, May 8.—(AP)—The American League is setting the pace in virtually every department of major baseball.

While the hitting in the American is heavier than in the National games, players in the junior circuit also are showing up better defensively and accepting more chances in the field with more success than are players in the National.

The big exception, and an evident one, is in pitching. Led by Jess Petty and his brilliant work on the mound for Brooklyn, National League hurlers so far this season have made considerably more impressive showings than pitchers with American clubs.

In slugging, the Yankees continue to top them all with a club batting percentage of .313, having out of the most home runs, three-baggers and bases generally of any club in either league this year and ranking second to Washington only in base stealing. Chicago has climbed to second place in the American batting standing, with a percentage of .297, and the Senators are third with .292. Chicago's Cubs have shot up to the top in hitting among National teams with an average of .288 and the Giants are second with .282.

Joe Dugan of the Yankees has displaced Goslin of Washington as the leading hitter in the majors, with a percentage of .431 after 19 games, the Senator having dropped to second with an average of .420 among players in 15 or more games. Babe Ruth trails Goslin with .334 and Ty Cobb, as yet having been in about a dozen games, is hitting .400 even, records for the season through last Wednesday's games show.

Wilson Leads League

Hack Wilson, outfielder who went to the Cubs from New York, leads the slugging in the National with an average of .364, although several players in fewer games show better percentages. Stuffy McInnis of the Pirates has averaged .362 in 14 games and Sand of the Phillies .358 in 18. Rogers Hornsby hit a slump and is batting fourth with .353.

Double plays have been more abundant in the American so far with the St. Louis Browns having doubled 32 players out to lead but in spite of the speed indicated, more bases have been stolen by American than National players, the Senators proving most deft with a total of 21. Fisch of the Giants, Mueller of St. Louis and Cuyler of Pittsburgh finished the third week of the season with five pilfered sacks each in National games with Rice of Washington and Bob Meusel of the Yankees setting the pace in the American with five apiece.

A large field leads the race for home

AMERICAN LEAGUE THREATS SET HOT PACE FOR YANKEES

Washington and Philadelphia Hard on Heels of Huggins Men

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Teams regarded as dangerous in the American League race are setting a dizzy pace, with the New York Yankees after gaining a long lead by heavy hitting at the start of the season barely clinging to the leadership. Washington's rush—the Senators now have won six straight contests—has for the moment left Chicago behind and Philadelphia with five wins in a row, is advancing at breakneck speed. Cleveland also remains a threat.

The Yankees cast off the shackles and won yesterday from Detroit after 11 innings, 7-6, when Collins slashed a single past third base to score Dugan from second. Babe Ruth scored his sixth homer in the first inning. Washington had little trouble in downing the White Sox, 8-2, although Walter Johnson permitted ten safeties, four of them for extra bases. The "Big Train" put on the "air" when trouble loomed, except in the first when Chicago tallied twice. Goose Goslin had a perfect day at bat with three singles.

Philadelphia's margin over the St. Louis Browns was too much for Tom Zachary who weakened in the eighth and three men crossed the plate. Lefty Grove allowed only six hits and won, 5-1.

The Boston Red Sox were victims of a 11-2 war dance performed by the Cleveland Indians. In the first two innings seven Indian runners registered, with Kiefer pitching.

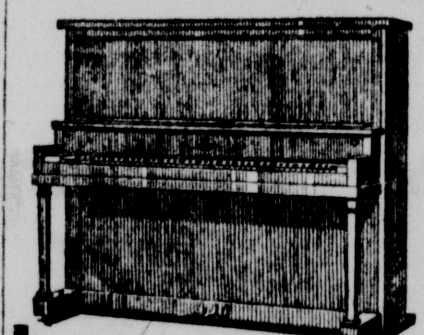

Brooklyn retained its margin of leadership in the National League with Burleigh Grimes hurling masterfully to beat the Cardinals, 7-1. Tony Kaufman of the Chicago Cubs recorded another commendable pitching exhibition and turned back the New York Giants, 6-0. He granted four scattered safeties and issued no passes.

Thirty four safeties were pounded out in an eleven inning tussle between Pittsburgh and Boston that the Pirates won, 15-10, after tying the count in the ninth with a four score rally. Wright made another home run.

Cincinnati also staged a three run rally in the ninth which defeated Philadelphia 6-5.

Why Girls Go Back Home

CATHARINE BRODY

Copyright 1926 by Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.

"Why Girls Go Back Home" with Patsy Ruth Miller is a Warner production from this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Marie Downey, innocent and pretty, misinterprets the kisses of Clifford Dudley, a matinee idol, as a proposal; she ruthlessly "frames" her to get rid of her, but the notorious habit of making Marie's stage fame. She quickly rises to stardom. Meanwhile, the scandalous story gets into her home town papers. John, her former sweetheart, writes that he believes in her and will come to New York to marry her if she wants; but Marie, tasting success, puts him off.

CHAPTER IX—(Continued)

She had been such a hit that they had tried to put it up in electric signs finally. Of course her agent had something to do with that and her personal publicity agent to whom a bit of her salary had gone ungrudgingly for some months. She had become hardened to this press agent not permitting the public to forget what she had once so ardently wished to prevent it from learning—that she had once been the fiancée, cast off in disgrace and in record time, of Clifford Dudley.

She allowed Sally and the publicity man to persuade her to build up a new personality, that of a chic, adorable, half French, consciousness flit, subtly but not too obviously tinged with what to the theatrical public is an irresistible perfume of elegant immorality—not flagrant immorality, you understand.

She and Sally sat at the orange and yellow tea stand.

stand, which is like the disgusting look of perfume in the making, but simply a sophisticated lack of conventionality. What difference in a syllable!

Thomas Burke speaks somewhere of the corners people turn in life, when they suddenly become conscious of leaving behind a definite portion of the road. Such a corner Marie saw when they gave up Sally's apartment and moved to a sparsely duplex studio in the fifties. She hated to denude the walls of their pictures and leave them reproachfully bare and lonesome. Each bit of discarded furniture was a wrench. The old telephone number had become a part of her. When she found a picture of Clifford hidden under odds and ends in a bureau drawer she wept.

"Yes, it's remarkable how we can keep on loving them even when they're proved saps and eads," remarked Sally sympathetically. Marie fung the picture from her. "Oh, don't be a fool, Sally. The sight of him, even in a picture, makes me sick. But—but—" She couldn't explain it. She cried more than ever. But she could not tell Sally that it was only because she was sorry that a bit of her life had been utterly lived, that one page of the book had been turned over and contents lost to all but memory. It occurred to her oddly that she had never had a picture of John. She wished she had had one. She had never even fancied herself in love for such a long time!

"They left the picture of Clifford Dudley lying face downward on the floor, where the janitress found it and hung it devotedly in her living room to the utter demoralization of her husband."

The duplex studio in the fifties proved to be a very short corner indeed. By next autumn, when a new theatre flashed Marie's name to the world, she, with Sally always in her train, was ready to conquer new worlds.

There were still dancing lessons, but there were no more afternoons spent in home grooming, nor were there any but the fleetest of visits to the big shops. Marie's maid attended to the grooming and the routine shopping. Her sheerer than ever stockings no longer cost $5 a pair, but came in dozens of pairs and were paid for by checks which would have made the old Marie wince. Wherever she went there were stares and murmurs. Unknown girls besought her for advice on how to get on the stage, and the Sunday papers wrote columns analyzing the allure Marie Downey had for the public. The public discussed on subways and over dinner tables and with their best friends did she really get a thousand a week or only half that much, and was it true that that millionaire who had been reported engaged to her was keeping her? And was she really French, or had she really come from the Middle West, as some people said? But it was more than likely that she was French, in view of the gossip about her, and you remember how she threw down poor Clifford Dudley, and so she must be French, because you know what these French girls are.

The final move of Marie and Sally, three years after the apartment in the Forties, left them in a house like a tiny, but superlative jewel set in the quiet, superlative street in Greenwich Village that has turned its back on Washington Square and the Village both and lives a life sufficient to itself. Society women trying to turn actresses live there, and famous painters and wealthy dilettantes and writers who would not know a garret if they saw one. The cobblestoned division between the houses dispenses with any but the merest suggestion of a sidewalk. Its people do not walk, and even its win down shun the curious passerby.

At night the way is deserted, but subdued sounds of cheer, the faint glow of lights and the exquisite comfort revealed by an occasional opened door strike envy to the hearts of those who pass. Many of these sounds of cheer came from Marie's house in the middle of the row. She had developed—perhaps it was her inn-keeping father again—striking ease and interest as a hostess. In invitations to her after theatre parties were wrangled for, not only by theatrical people, but by the whole semi-smart professional crowd that has a foot in all the arts, and by people with old and well known names, who would turn down an invitation to a house on Fifth avenue when Marie Downey gave a party.

"Why, I could think of half a dozen men," declared Sally, "who'd be willing even to marry me if they could go to your parties for the rest of their lives."

Sally was as much the fixer of other people's troubles as ever. She had grown a bit fleshier, and some of the wrinkles, due to worrying about engagements, road tours, the delay of alimony checks, had been ironed out. She was always sure of a past in a Marie Downey show. Marie, on the other hand, had grown appreciably thinner. She smoked a good deal and had to remember to keep her eyes wistful. But neither her complexion nor her hair, nor her round chin, nor the now famous dimple and equally famous knees, had altered.

She was smoking now as she and Sally sat in the living room over the orange and yellow tea stand, smoking and looking impatient over a letter.

"Letter from home?" guessed Sally.

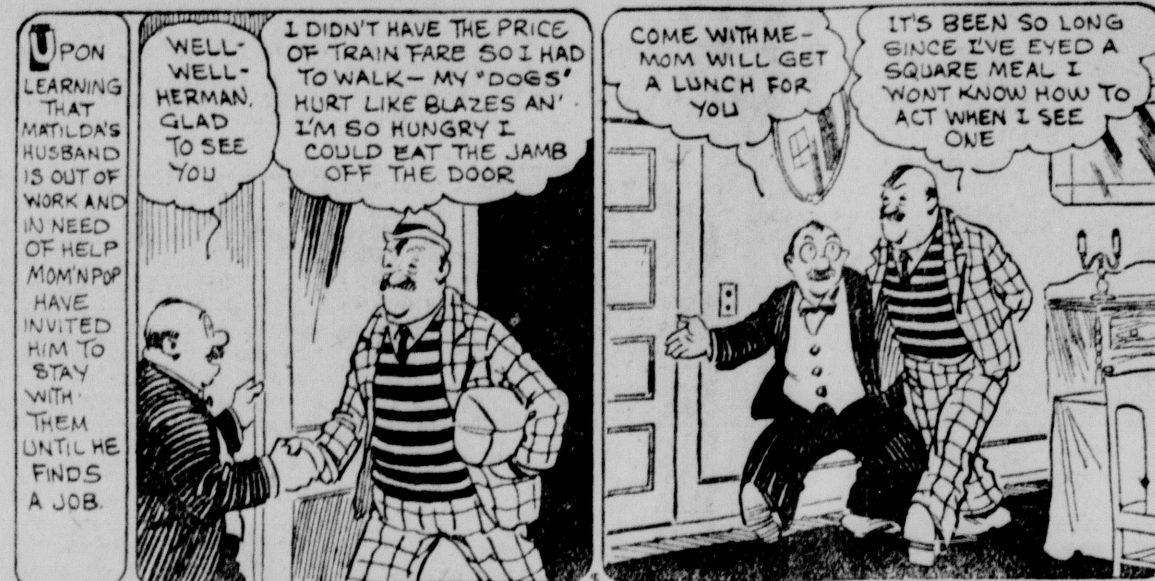

"Yop," said Marie briefly. "She folded it and tossed it at Sally. "It's from John. I wish I could put that town off the map, where it belongs."

"What's all the shooting for now?" sighed Sally. A newspaper clipping fell out of the folded letter. She read it, "Tch-tch-tch!"

Winesville was not letting Marie forget. Three years meant little in its life. But Marie Downey (who, the editor always added mockingly, was better known to her home town with a "y"), as a great subject for gossip meant a lot. This latest story was an exaggerated account of her engagement to another millionaire, with faint innuendos. "It is said that Mr. Clarke's first gift to his fiancée, who may be ex-fiancée by this time, because of her well known habit of breaking engagements in record time, was a well stocked cellar. He would not let her want!" Sally clutched her hair and went on to the letter. "You don't seem to care for your own reputation, but you might think of your father's. The lady from the W. C. T. U. was down to see me about this cellar that the paper says a millionaire gave you. She said she wouldn't believe it of a daughter of mine, when I've always been a teetotaler, and your mother was a member of the W. C. T. U. She asked me to use my influence, and I write to ask you to please think of your father if you don't care what you do yourself. It breaks my heart to think of you doing those things. No girl could have a whole house alone. There's something wrong in it. Even if your friend, Miss Short, lives with you I do not like what you write about her—a divorced woman. You know I do not believe in divorce, Marie—"

OREGON NEWS

Oregon—Announcement has been made that Superintendent H. L. Cecil will return to Oregon for another year and likewise the following high school faculty under him will return: Principal, Olive Stoffregen; Latin, Ruth Dick; History and French, Margaret Redfield; English and History, Martha Scott; Mathematics, Helen Munroe; Science, Marjorie Salter English; Irene Mautz; Coach and Commercial, A. Mierderchs. The grade teachers who have signed contracts to return are: First grade, Ruby Nash; second grade, Helen Reed Johnson; third grade, vacant fourth grade, vacant; fifth grade, Nora Rothemel; sixth grade, Ella Oakes; seventh grade, Flora Blomquist eighth grade, Mayme Gantz. From an economical standpoint the school board has decided not to have music an art in the school for next year. This past year has been very successful under Prof. H. L. Cecil and last fall he came to Oregon for the first time as superintendent. He was handicapped in many ways because of the crowded conditions in the high school but the board hopes to remedy the conditions as best it can. Coach Mierderchs organized the first football team last fall that Oregon had produced in 15 years and he did wonders with the boys under the conditions. His basketball team did good work and at present he has several candidates trying out for the football team next fall. In track events they have been recognized and although they will lose their best man Willard Burright who graduates this spring they hope to have enough aspirants next fall to take his place. Last fall when school opened there was an entirely new faculty in the high school and each one certainly did his part toward making this year one of the most successful years Oregon has ever known. The school spirit has been fine and the co-operation of the teachers has been the very best, so the students have shown the greatest interest in their work. The Oregon people are hoping that next year will be very successful and that our school may soon be up to the standard that it should be.

Miss Ethel Finkbner is driving a new car.

Fred Nordman has recently purchased the Riplinger residence on South Third street and expects to take possession soon. Some one person is hostess to four other persons for an afternoon at 50 cents a person at cards or thimbles with the understanding that each of them will be hostess to three other persons in the same manner and these three agree to entertain two in like manner and each two to entertain one and thus the vanishing party of it.

Jack Moser of Dixon gave a dinner party at the Malmberg Tavern Wednesday night to a number of his friends. He formerly lived in Oregon and his father was proprietor of the Mississippi hotel.

The French club of the Oregon high school met at the home of Miss Helen Taylor Wednesday evening. Miss Martha Scott of the Oregon high school faculty expects her mother from Chicago for the week end to enjoy Mother's Day with her. Miss Ida Law of Davis Junction was a guest in the Henry Maysells home Thursday and Friday. The senior class play of the Oregon high school will be given in the Coliseum next Thursday evening, May 13. The title of the play is, "It Happened in June." The following synopsis of the play is given: Two months in the dull village of Shady Grove seems worse than a prison sentence to Charles Atkins, a wild young Harvard man. His duty to close the Shady Grove store conflicts with his feeling for Betty Branson, owner of the doomed store. Business? Yes. Plans for a triple wedding for Charles and Betty, Randy and Susie, Mollie and Jim. The following is the cast of characters: Betty Branson, pretty young owner of the Shady Grove store, Sylvia Christensen; Susie Crundel, Betty's best friend and neighbor, Lucille Sitter; Nellie Crundel, Susie's 16 year old sister, Lucille Sitter Mollie Jessup, cook for the Bransons; Verna Bry; Evalina Rogers, a flirtatious girl of the village, Marguerite Tholen; Charles Atkins, a young visitor in Shady Grove, Harold Bergstrom; Sandy Steward, a friend who sells insurance, William Price; Jim Pritchett, a village loafer, Willard Burright; Jarvis Sneed, meatman in the county and president of the Shady Grove bank, James Hays. THESE WOMEN

WRITTEN BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

HARRY MORTON finds him self in a quandary because of his effort to avert the love of his adopted daughter, AUDREY, who wants to marry him. NONA, a New York stage girl, also loves him, and he brings her to Rochester to disgust Audrey with his way of life. He fails in that, but he finds himself under a social boycott in his home town.

He also has thrown Audrey into the company of JOHN PARKINSH, his secretary, and Parrish suddenly proposes to her. She only laughs.

Morton, rich, unmarried, misdiagnosed, and immensely attractive to women, maintains an apartment in New York as well as his home in Rochester.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

(The names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER XXXVI

AUDREY looked at him inquiringly.

"It's been two years since you left boarding school," Morton said. "Don't you miss your old friends there?"

The girl waited for him to go on. "Suppose," he resumed, "you have a couple of the girls come here to visit, and play around?"

Audrey clasped her hands behind her head, and swinging to and fro in her chair, thought over the idea.

"Daddy," she said finally, "I'm ages older than those girls, now. I wouldn't know what to say to them."

"But you're exactly the same age as they are," he objected.

She sighed. "In years, yes. But in experience—" She cast a quick, suspicious glance at him. "Don't laugh at me, daddy! I HAVE had experience, and it has aged me!"

"I'm not laughing," he said, his countenance sober.

She examined his face, doubtfully. "Well, you looked like it. I prefer the company of those chorus girls in New York. At least, they understand life, and the girls from school are only babies, still."

Morton left his chair and moved to the porch rail, leaning against it so that he faced her.

"Audrey," he said, "your stand ards are all upset. You've been running emotionally wild, these last two months, and you're a social waif. Do you know it?"

Morton drew up his knee, and clasped his hands around it.

"You used to belong to a certain crowd—a group that thought very much as you did. Nice girls, with nice families, and nice ways. You had no men friends aside from me. Now, with this idea of yours that you were in love with me—"

"I AM in love with you," she interrupted.

"All right. With this idea that you ARE in love with me, you've tried running away from home, as if you were a runaway, and you've been sociating with stage girls to learn how they look at life, turning your thoughts into a different channel, and presto! You don't belong to your old crowd any more at all. You're not interested in them. And yet you're not a chorus girl, or an actress, or really a dancer. What are you, then?"

The girl pondered a long while. "I suppose I'm a girl who wants her mate, and hasn't got him," she said at last.

Morton gave a short, reminiscent laugh, and she looked at him in surprise.

He hurriedly explained, "I wasn't laughing at you. But I saw another case of an upset soul today."

He told her, with droll commentaries, of his adventure with Mr. and Mrs. Carver, and of the lady's insistence that her husband should in attitude divorce proceedings. Audrey listened gravely.

"At your age, and at about forty, women do wild and peculiar things," he ended.

"That isn't it," she contradicted.

"Daddy, are you going to marry me?"

him calmly. "She really was attracted to you, and wanted to catch your attention," she told him. "I know the feeling. If women can't get the notice of the man they like by smiling at him, they're apt to do crazy things, so he'll look at them. If she thought she could get your attention by standing on her head, she'd have done that!"

"Perhaps," he said. "Perhaps."

"I'm SURE of it," she told him. "You are a wonderfully fascinating man, you know."

"What's the reason?" he asked.

"Because you're indifferent," she said, promptly. "I think you just drive women crazy with curiosity after you've once cast that cool, distant eye of yours on them."

He laughed. "That must be so, then. It was Nona, I think, who told me that before."

She got up and came to him. "Daddy, are you going to marry me?" She stretched her arms out straight, with her hands upon his shoulders.

He shook his head slowly. "Audrey, dear, I wish you never would ask me that again. It hurts me. I can't marry you."

She stood, motionless, still holding to his shoulders.

"Did you love my mother?" she pursued, softly.

"Yes," he dropped his head. "She leaned against his knee, which he still held clasped in his hands."

"You said I was like my mama," she said. "If you couldn't marry her, wouldn't I do—if only as a substitute?"

He shook his head, slowly. Dropping her hands quickly, she turned away from him.

"Then it makes no difference what I do," she said, bitterly. "I'm no good to anyone."

She ran into the house, and the door slammed behind her.

Audrey had regained her spirits the next morning, when she descended to breakfast. In a new pink and white dress, she floated into the breakfast room, and turned around so her guardian could admire her outfit.

"But why the war paint?" he inquired, after he had paid tribute to the dress.

She had employed a lipstick and rouge again, and her lashes were darkened.

"They're symbols," she explained. "Which?"

"Symbols," she repeated. "They're symbols of a great resolution."

"Are you going out to be a wild woman and vamp men and crush them?" he inquired, dipping into his grapefruit.

She danced to her chair, and fluttered her napkin.

"No, I've decided on my proper place in society. Those old cats who came to see me about you have disgusted me with THIS crowd. And the girls from school are infants. But I like girls like Nona and the chorus girls, because they're REAL. I'm going to associate with them, here after."

"But," he objected, "I thought you were angry at Nona."

"That was just a spat," Audrey said, placidly. "In our circle—Nona's and mine and the chorus girls—we can fight one day and make up the next. We only fight over men."

Morton was amused. "What do the society women fight over?" he wanted to know.

"I suppose," said Audrey, "that it is over men, too, only they get at it indirectly. They TALK about precedence, and who invites whom, and what she said about what. But I guess that in the background they're thinking about the man question, all the same."

"Hm!" responded Morton. "But what do you do next?"

"I've decided," she said. "I'm going to send for Nona and the girls, and those poor prunes of dancing men, and have them all come up here and visit me!"

He laid down his spoon and stared. "The whole gang?"

"Absolutely," she said. "I want to show the people in this town that I'm emancipated. I don't care WHAT they think!"

"Well I'll be darned," he commented.

After a moment's thought, he resumed. "You can't have Nona and the boys at this house, though."

"Why not?" she demanded.

"Because I'm not emancipated," he said, dryly. "You may be a free soul, but I'm old-fashioned. I don't mind your having the chorus here, but I've been around town with Nona, and she's got to stay at the hotel. And so have those dancing boys."

"Them?" Audrey's voice was filled with a fine contempt. "The boys can't do any harm! They're weak as dishwater."

Morton was firm. "I'm not going to have dishwater in my house. Not at this writing—and not with eight or ten noisy chorus girls dashing around. We're likely to be raised as it is."

Audrey laughed delightedly. "Wouldn't that be great? I'd just LIKE to see it happen!"

"See what happen?" he inquired.

"See us raised," she proclaimed. "Wouldn't that stir this old town up?"

Humph! was his only comment. It was with real satisfaction that the officer later in the morning, received Morton's instructions. He took, in shorthand, a telegram to Abe Sunshine, and another to Nona, asking that the entire cast of the revue be sent to Rochester forthwith, as the guests of the Morton household. Morton included an invitation to Sunshine himself.

"Add a line to Abe's message," said Morton, as an afterthought. "Say, 'Will continue rehearsals here!'"

Parrish moved his notebook away from him.

"This is a terrible thing, Mr. Morton," he said.

"It's confounded nonsense," his employer agreed. "But Audrey has made up her mind to it."

Parrish tapped his pencil on the desk. "You indulge her too much, sir," he said, with emphasis.

Morton surveyed him quizzically. "Have you ever tried combatting the young lady's wishes?"

Parrish arose, and moved to the door. "Several times," he responded. "but without much success."

Toward noon, Audrey called up to say that she had ordered several new dresses—"AWFULLY low-cut, the ones for evening," she added. "And the others are just too gay for words!"

"Your idea is to shock the public of Rochester?" he inquired.

"You said it!" she responded, as she hung up.

Morton was laughing as he set down the telephone, but gradually his face fell. He lapsed into a brown study, his arms folded upon the table and his eyes fixed vacantly on the wall. Once, when Parrish entered, Morton waved him away with an impatient gesture.

Parrish laid a telegram on the table, and withdrew. Morton did not look at it.

With a heavy sigh, he turned at last to his desk, and opened a small drawer, that was concealed behind the upper curve of the lid. He drew from it the packet of papers that he had examined several times before in the last few weeks, and slowly untied the tape that bound it.

Laying the faded letters and photographs on the walnut table, one by one, he carefully picked two of the pictures, and several of the letters, and laid them to one side. His hands moved heavily as he restored the remainder of the package to its hiding place. The papers he had laid aside, he clipped together with a bit of wire, and left upon his desk.

Then he turned to the telephone, and called Audrey.

She responded, with excited chatter about the coming visit of the members of her revue. He listened until she was done.

"There was something else," he told her. "Can you come to the office, right away?"

He hung up, and sinking back in his chair, waited until she appeared, half an hour later.

She fluttered into the room, with a laughing inquiry.

"Sit here," he told her.

As she obeyed, he took one of the photographs and handed it to her, silently. She took it, and looked at the dimmed likeness that it bore.

"Why," she cried, "that looks exactly like me!"

THOS. LINCOLN'S INDIANA HOME A REAL ORPHANAGE

Historian Gives Data of Homestead of Abe's Father

Springfield, May 7.—(AP)—Thomas Lincoln's log cabin in Spencer county, Indiana, might well have been designated the first orphan's home in that state, since under its roof were sheltered the remnants of three families, Louis A. Warrin of Louisville, Indiana, collector of Lincolniana, told the combined conference of the Mississippi Valley and Illinois State historical societies here today.

"Here under one roof were gathered the remnants of the Sparrow, the Johnston and the Lincoln families," Mr. Warrin said. His paper was entitled "Sarah Bush Lincoln—The Step-mother of Abraham Lincoln."

"When Nancy Lincoln succumbed to the 'milk sickness' in October, 1818, there survived her the widower, Thomas, 42; a daughter, Sarah, 11; a son, Abraham, 9. Two other victims of the same epidemic were Thomas and Elizabeth Sparrow, uncle and aunt of Mrs. Lincoln, who left behind a stepson by the name of Dennis Hanks. This 19 year old lad thereafter on became a member of the Lincoln household.

"Thomas Lincoln's second wife brought to the new home three children by her first marriage: a son, John Johnston, 5; and two daughters, Martha, 9 and Elizabeth 13.

"During the first eight years of Abraham Lincoln's life he had been under the influence of his mother, Nancy Hanks Lincoln. Following her death his sister, but two years older than himself tried to mother him. And finally, for the next twelve years, until he became of age, Sarah Bush Lincoln bestowed her affections upon him and advised with him as if he were her own child.

"While the attitude of his step-mother towards his mental preparation was undoubtedly her greatest contribution, she was also considerably of his physical needs. When Sarah arrived at the desolate Indiana cabin of Thomas Lincoln her attention was first directed to the immediate needs of the orphan children. Since the swimming season had been closed for at least two months, it was not likely that a boy ten years of age without any motherly persuasion would have made any special effort toward cleanliness. A general scrubbing for the whole family, therefore, was the first order which came from the new director of the Lincoln household.

"The cabin next received the attention of the new Mrs. Lincoln, with the result that wood for the floor, glass for the windows, and whitewash for the walls were provided by Thomas and used at her direction. Years later her own daughters spoke of her sprightliness and industry, which gave the Lincoln children a better environment than the average pioneer home."

Solves the Problem of "Six" versus "High-priced Four"

"Shall I buy a high-priced four and forego six-cylinder performance superiority; or is there a low priced six which is free from the penalties of ordinary appearance, ordinary comfort and ordinary stamina?"

For several years this question has been widely debated by motor car buyers. That it has been finally solved by the Pontiac Six is clearly revealed in the spectacular triumph this new General Motors car is scoring the nation over.

General Motors devoted over three years to the development of a six that offered high quality at an unexpectedly low price. But every Pontiac Six owner will tell you that it was well worth waiting for——because from the very first time he took possession of the wheel he was convinced that he had made a sound investment, unequalled in the industry—a value that only General Motors could possibly achieve!
